

Transformer Architecture

Transformers are neural network architectures that use attention mechanisms to process sequential information.